FROM THE DIRECTOR'S DESK

Recently I had the pleasure of previewing the new book by Keith Priest and Lyssa Royal. The title is "Preparing For Contact: A Metamorphosis of Consciousness." The book is about Extraterrestrials and how we may expect contact with them in the future. Each and every one of us hopes and expects that some day the truth will be known. We imagine that truth will come in some form to meet our current expectations of how that contact should take place. The problem is that we expect a ship to land on the White House lawn and make formal diplomatic relations with us and some advanced alien race. But that belief is based on our own concepts of how contact protocol should transpire, cause that is the way we would do it and that is the way it was done in the past. Columbus landed on the beach and met with the chief and exchanged greetings and gifts. But those of you who have studied the UFO phenomenon in more detail realize that everything that we believe and everything that we understand does not fit into the UFO reality. We have based our concepts on the Newtonian laws of physics. We have been taught from childhood that the world is three-dimensional, solid and real. Our scientists figured if they could just reduce everything down to its smallest component, we would eventually understand it all. But in truth, when you get down to the sub-atomic level, all our current theories and understanding breaks down. Enter now the world of quantum physics.

UFO research has shown us that all of our laws of physics have to be redefined as we look at the new aspects of our current research. They defy our very basic concepts of reality; they defy the logical constructs of our brain; and they defy the very way in which we understand ourselves and the environment around us.

It is now time to expand beyond our physical limitations and expand our consciousness and our very being and try to understand an extremely complex phenomenon from a completely different perspective.

This book takes on that new perspective. It is a perspective that allows us to explore reality from a multi-dimensional aspect. All indications of current research tell us that we are not necessarily dealing with an extraterrestrial occurrence but instead something far more reaching than that. Something that touches our very soul . . . something that expands our evolution and our essence. Something that takes us that one step beyond and changes us as a species. The people who are so-called abductees are a step apart from the rest; they have experienced a metamorphosis that cannot be understood by those who have not undergone the experience. The experience itself is beyond time and space. What they describe is beyond time and space. So perhaps it is now time for the rest of us to look at this entire phenomenon from a completely different perspective. One that, in itself, defies time and space. Maybe we are expecting contact on our own terms, and that is our problem; that is why we are so frustrated because it can't happen on our terms! Our terms are just that -- OUR terms. What we need to do is be open to the possibility that there might exist other terms. Even other dimensions of time and space that don't necessarily align themselves with our own. We need to look at an entirely new model of the universe; one that is a little more elastic. One that is not stuck in the limitations of a three-dimensional perspective.

This book is about an aspect of contact from a different perspective . . . that of Pleiadian contact. It is a step beyond your average thinking. In fact, it will be stretch for your typical UFO buff. It does not deal with flying saucers, sightings, crashes or government cover-ups. It does not even deal with the greys and the abduction phenomenon (that was covered in Visitation From Within). It should now be recognized by more people who have seriously studied UFOs that there is more than one phenomenon going on, and that the picture is even larger than anyone ever dreamed it could possibly be. We must move on past logging lights in the sky -- we cannot limit the data, because it makes us uncomfortable. Our minds need to be open to reality we never thought possible. Maybe it is WE who have created the limitations of understanding the UFO phenomenon for what it is.

Try reading this book when it comes out in February and let it take you on a journey into a metamorphosis of consciousness as we prepare for contact.

As always, I look forward to your ideas and input.

KECKSBURG UFO

In the September 1993 issue of OMNI Magazine, James Obert suggests that the "Kecksburg UFO" might have been a classified recovery of "Soviet Kosmos-96" and that "UFO buffs are on the wrong side. Instead of exposing the truth, they may be unwitting pawns in the deception."

United Nations Resolution 1962 was unanimously adopted by the General Assembly of the United Nations on December 13, 1963. This resolution entitled "Declaration of Legal Principles Governing the Activities of States in the Exploration and Use of Outer Space" state, in part: "Ownership of objects launched into outer space, and their component parts, is not affected by their passage through outer space or by their return to the Earth. Such objects or component parts found beyond the limits of the state of registry shall be returned to that State, which shall furnish identifying data upon request prior to return." Similar language was used in the Outer Space Treaty of an earlier date. The United States was a party to both of these treaties and required by international law to follow. The Department of State has released hundreds of documents clearly showing we have been involved with the recovery of many objects, some of which have been identified as being of Soviet origin and returned to the Soviets. However, many objects were not identified or returned to any possible launch State. In some cases the Department of State downplayed its knowledge of the cases.

If any agency of the United States Government, for whatever reason, took it upon itself to violate the law, be it international law or otherwise, should it be held accountable for that action? Laws that are not enforced and upheld are meaningless and not worth the paper on which they are written. We need to ask ourselves: can any government agency or office place itself above the laws of the land? If so, what good are these laws, and what useful purpose can they serve?

In a country such as ours, where laws are enacted for the common good of the people, can we afford not to hold those responsible, regardless of what agency they may be party to, accountable?

Like at the Outta Limits UFO Enigma Museum have not ruled out any possible answer as to what the Kecksburg UFO might have been. We are searching for the government record of this event, not to prove that which we might believe, but to prove the truth of this event so we will know what to believe.

IF UFOs ARE REAL. WHY DON'T THEY LAND ON THE WHITE HOUSE LAWN?

The answer to the question voiced in the title is . . .
"There wasn't enough room!"

FACT: Although officially "explained" by the Air Force as "thermal inversions and tricks of the eye," over a hundred UFOs buzzed the White House and the Capitol Building in July of 1952, literally flying in formations back and forth across the nation's capitol for hours on end. The White House lawn simply could not have accommodated them all!

The large-scale display over the country's capitol is a documented fact. Why has it slipped from public consciousness? Do we as a nation suffer from faulty memories, or is it that we accept confabulated explanations (thermal inversions, swamp gas, etc.) of unknown phenomena so our fragile framework of reality can remain, like a house of cards, somehow intact.

Is there a "conspiracy" by the news media to keep the truth from being known? Perhaps the L.A. Times, the New York Times, the Washington Post and other major newspapers are concerned about tarnishing their image with the much-ridiculed and maligned subject of Ufology, except in a few rare cases more recently. However, the pervading American mindset, at least officially, has been to "downgrade, debunk, and tranquilize" the subject of UFOs for more than 40 years.

A day-by-day examination of other newspapers, so relatively small and obscure because of geography and population, points to an entirely different reality, that contrary to unofficial and official propaganda, UFO sightings have not waned, but on the contrary, continue to appear with relatively high frequency over a wide area of the country. The difference may be in the reporting, whereas in the past such derision was heaped on witnesses that they often kept their mouths shut for fear of harassment, but now that atmosphere has changed . . . somewhat.

The bottom line is that sightings, some of "high strangeness," have continued to occur on an almost daily basis in the U.S. Naturally, many sightings can be explained as natural phenomena or misidentification of celestial objects or aircraft, but others point to a solid occurrence not in compliance with accepted "norms," i.e., the object and/or occupants are not of this earth/time frame/dimension or whatever their origin.

It is a matter of most serious proportions . . . a situation real as it gets, despite official efforts to fog, obfuscate or disinform on the subject. Just as you supposedly can't fool all the people all the time, people can't be seeing thermal inversions, venus, or "space debris" all the time, either.

UFO CONTROVERSY EXCITES DEBATE-PRONE AMERICA

by Irma Bombeck

You're a country of people who choose up sides at the drop of a controversy. You either smoke or you're against it. You're pro-life or pro-choice. You believe Elvis is dead or you saw him buying Cheetos last week at Wal-Mart. But probably the most intriguing division of people are those who believe in UFOs and those who don't. Michael Regimonte of Annapolis, MD, was one of 50 protesters who recently marched in front of the White House to call on the government to release 20,000 pages of documents they claim prove the existence of UFOs. "It's not like this is a Star Trek convention featuring the Attack of the Pear People vs. the Great Unwashed," he said. He worries that is what people think when believers in UFOs, visits by aliens from other planets and flying-saucer abductions get together. On the other side of the coin, Terence Sanbek, a Sacramento clinical psychologist, is quoted as saying: "To go to the nearest star is going to take years and years if you travel at the speed of light, which you can't. When you got there, would you talk to a drunken fisherman from Mississippi, or would you talk to a head of state? If you are that intelligent, you couldn't act that stupid." In a national poll of 5,947 adult Americans conducted two years ago, 2 percent reported having at least four types of experiences consistent with UFO abductions. They saw unusual lights, woke up paralyzed, had unusual scars on their bodies, and couldn't remember what happened. I said to my husband, "Isn't it strange that we have never been stopped on the road by someone with a little head, sunken eyes and a big round stomach with no waistline?" "Maybe they think we're one of them," he said. "Why do you suppose they set down on a Godforsaken country road or in a field in Arkansas somewhere? They can't get a parking place? I don't know."

In keeping with our philosophy to disagree on every issue, I said, "What do you want to be? The believer or the non-believer?" "I'll be the believer," he said. "It's more fun." "Suit yourself," I said. "I have Carl Sagan on my side and you have a guy named Bubba from Tennessee." He said, "Just because you have never known anyone who had an outer-space experience doesn't mean they don't exist. Have you ever known anyone personally who won the publisher's Clearinghouse Sweepstakes?" He's scaring me.

Model maker unveils spy plane, tugs at Pentagon's secrecy veil

Fort Worth Star-Telegram

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon denies its existence, but some aviation buffs believe a top-secret, high-speed spy plane has been streaking across the country from a Nevada air base.

And it's headed to toy stores.

In a development driven by a curious mix of child's play and high-tech detective work, a leading manufacturer of model airplanes claims it has blown the lid off a classified Air Force program to develop a next-generation spy plane.

Testor Corp.'s new model, the SR-75 Penetrator, gives form to a mystery that has puzzled aerospace enthusiasts for nearly a decade.

Piecing together evidence that includes unusual vapor trails in Texas, unexplained sonic booms in California and a claimed sighting off Scotland, some aviation watchers have concluded that the Defense Department is testing a replacement for the SR-71 Blackbird, a spy plane that was retired from service in 1990.

Testor's version of the plane probably would be dismissed as kid's stuff except for its track record.

In 1986, the Rockford, Ill., model maker raised eyebrows in the defense community by releasing a reasonably accurate plastic version of the then-secret F-117 stealth fighter.

Although the company guessed wrong on the aircraft's number-letter designation — Testor called it the F-19 — its replica provided an early glimpse of the futuristic fighter two years before the Air Force officially acknowledged its existence.

Product developer John Andrews, whose research led to the early version F-117 and the company's newest model, also scored in the late 1950s with a version of the U-2 spy plane. Andrews said he complied with requests to keep the model off the market until the 1960 crash of U-2 pilot Gary Powers in the Soviet Union ended any need for secrecy.

In a telephone interview from his San Diego office, Andrews expressed confidence that the new spy-plane model is 70 to 80 percent accurate.

"Without seeing it, you cannot be absolutely certain, but we have put together a lot of pieces of the jigsaw puzzle," he said.

MARCH ON THE WHITE HOUSE BY OPERATION RIGHT TO KNOW

By Tom Benson

This July, I celebrate the 40th anniversary of my UFO sighting that occurred in 1953. Back then, I wondered why the government representatives explained away the July 1952 UFO flap over Washington, D.C. as a weather inversion. What I saw at the time of my UFO sighting was certainly not a weather inversion. The C.I.A. sponsored Robertson Panel that convened in 1953 perceived the UFO phenomenon reports as a security problem. I didn't know the terms definition then, but yes a worldwide, institutional cover-up must have already in place at the time. I believe the insidious cover-up continues in order to maintain the status quo in our class divided societies, and it started long before 1947. Also the cover-up is due in part to the aliens themselves because of their behavior such as elusiveness and contradictoriness.

Well it's 1993 and the cover-up steadfastly remains in place. Operation Right To Know (ORTK) was established in 1992 as a political action UFO organization to get things accomplished. Except, for Donald E. Keyhoe of NICAP's past efforts, a couple of Congressional hearings that went nowhere, and the release of questionable FOIA documents, nothing has been accomplished by established UFO organizations. ORTK organized a march on the White House on July 5th, to get things going. We do not wish to sit on our asses for another forty years.

Space is the place

Protesters march in front of the White House, demanding that President Clinton make a 'full disclosure' about government information concerning UFOs. Some 50 people participated in the protest. They're calling on the government to release some 20,000 pages of documents which they claim prove the existence of UFOs.

ZIGGY

BY TOM WILSON

After I attended the Mutual UFO Network symposium in Richmond, VA. (800 approximately attended), as a vendor selling UFO related literature, I left for over a two hour drive to Washington, for the march on the White House.

The temperature was over 100 degrees and the march was scheduled to begin a little after 1:00 P.M. I judged by all media present, we were going to get our message out, and we did!

Approximately 100 people were assembled for this historic event. Among the hundred included a woman in a wheelchair and another woman on crutches. About half of this group, actually marched in front of the White House. Well known Ufologists in the crowd included Jim Moseley (long time satirical style writer, editor of the notorious "Saucer Smear" newsletter, lecturer (only Stan Friedman tops him at the total number of college audiences he has lectured to) and media personality), Tim Beckley (editor of "UFO Universe" magazine (tops in its field) and many other publications, and impresario of the P.T. Barnum style promoting the most popular UFO related events of this type, nationally), Antonio Huneus (MUFON (Mutual UFO Network) International Coordinator and columnist for FATE magazine) Rosemary Guiley (author of several books on the paranormal and columnist for FATE magazine) and ("true patriot" Larry Bryant, known for his one man campaigns against UFO secrecy, MUFON Director of Governmental Affairs and his Just CAUS (Citizens Against UFO Secrecy) organization).

During the demonstration, not many security personnel were evident, they were probably in air-conditioned buildings, looking through binoculars or viewing video monitors observing the activities. On the way home, I even had a helicopter fly over my car as I neared the Washington city limits, I was too busy driving to get a look at it as to markings, although it was a "dark" color.

Last year, ORTK in a similarly oriented, less publicized, effort had only about ten people picketing and distributing leaflets in front of the White House. This year ORTK moved to another level in reaching the masses regarding this relevant UFO topic. At a rally, ORTK organizers, Elaine Douglass, Hal McKenzie, Ed Komarek and Mike Jamison all gave uplifting short talks before the march began. Tom DeLoach gave us all spiritual guidance and invoked the name of Dr. Martin Luther King (a leader of the non-violent Civil Rights/Peace Movement of the 1950's and 60's).

Seven members of the New Jersey-Pennsylvania UFO Study Group attended this historic event. Besides myself, there was Pat Marcattilio (UFO Conference Impresario and UFO Museum to be Curator), Mindy Gerber (serial UFO Abductee) and George Hansen (well known Paranormal researcher), participated in the march in front of the White House. Arriving later, was Chelsea Flor (3rd Eye magazine editor) , Pat Stein and Art Sielicki, who participated in later activities. New Jersey probably had the largest contingent for this event. Yea! New Jersey!

We hope this event will grow in numbers of participants annually, coupled with other political oriented action activities (e.g., visits to political representatives, letter writing campaign, etc.). At the local level, "grass roots" leaders must emerge and initiate actions.

At the end of the march, I shook hands with Elaine Douglass who was acclaiming, "We Did it". Looking back on this event, one can glimpse figures from the past standing among us such as Susan B. Anthony, Dr. Martin Luther King, and Harriet Tubman all singing; Carry it on... carry it on....
